A Curious Monstrosity.

There has recently been born in this city the semblance of a human, being endowed with the freaks of nature not often met with in the annals of materia medica. It is a female child of the most horrid form and feature that it is possible to imagine. Its face is flat and inclined to be dishshaped, although it is plump and quite fleshy, and covered with a slight fuzz or down. Its eyes protrude beyond its large flat nose, which, together with a large mouth and thick lips, give it a hideous look, horrible to behold. Its spine is malformed, being hunch-backed and the vertebrae protrude from the flesh. Its flesh has a most peculiar sensation to the touch, and feels like so much India rubber. But the most wonderful part of the story is that it has no brain, the entire back portion of the head being absent. Back of a line drawn from the temporal bone, behind the ear. and down to the spine, there is no cranium or formation whatever, and nothing but a thin membrance, in a concave form, lines the back of the face, which is the only part of the head the body possesses. Its ears are small and drawn up, and look like hen's

Stange to say, this mass of curious flesh and malformation was born alive. It lived, however, but a few minutes. It weighed at the time of its birth about four pounds. It is preserved by one of our physicians, and is probably one of the most curious specimens of lapsus nature that was ever produced .- Oshkosh Northwestern.

Newsboys.

Talk about the gamin of Paris or the London street Arab as much as you like, but you can't for a moment shake your belief in the American newsboy. He is a model of energy and independence. He is a natural outgrowth of our peculiar system of journalism, and cries his papers with more blatant voice and reckless disregard for accuracy because of unlimited faith in American sewspaperdom. Hereveres everybody connected with was prenounced complete.

the press, from the uncome-at-able incumbent of editorial honors to the arbitrary and autocratical genius who presides over the folding and mailing room. He knows by sight every newspaper man, and believes religiously in the one who last gave him a gallery ticket to the theater. The newsboy is entirely wanting in respect for anybody outside the newspaper profession; considers good clothes . fraud, and polite conventionalities a delusion. He estimates every man by the number of papers he buys, and every woman by the magnitude of her chignon and the extent of her panier. His "diwine diwinity" is the leading lady at his favorite theater, for whom he has a chivalrie regard. But the newsboy is in some respects a model member of society. He is industrious, generous and constant; a combination of characteristics that is often wanting in people who wear better clothes.

A Masonic Baptism.

The novel ceremony of Masonic baptism was performed at the Masonic Temple in Washington, last Tuesday night, by Albert Pike, Esq., and other Scottish Rite Masons, upon two children, sons of Dr. Joseph W. Nairn and Mr. E. B. McGretty. Dr. Nairn's child, an infant, was borne on a cushion covered with blue silk, and the ceremony was made impressive by lighted candles, burning incense, formalities and paraphernalia of the exalted degrees of the order, and there was a large attendance. Praying, singing, etc., served as an introductory, when the children, their god-mothers and others were admited. Water, oil and salt were used in the ceremony, the left hands of the children being dipped in a bowl of perfumed water, as a signal of dedication to the service of virtue and truth; a delta was made of their foreheads with the finger dipped in oil, as the symbol of wisdom, power and love of God; and salt was placed in their mouths, as the seal of the Arabic vow, which sanctifies an enemy with whom one has tasted salt. Finally, the children were invested with lambskin aprons and Masonic jewlambskin aprons and Masonic jew-els, and their Masonic baptism and others.
